THREE STRANGE MEN

They Are for McKinley and Control About 'Steen Votes.

"BYSTANDER" IS FOR BRYAN

Cheley's "Madisonian," an influential Republican paper, will support the Chicago nominee—Politics in Butte.

The three McKinley men of Butte are still here and are still proof against all efforts at conversion. The three McKinley men claim that they represent a very large quiet vote, which is not courageous enough to declare itself but which will reach considerable proportions on election day. One of the three McKinley men goes so far as to claim that there will be 100 votes for the goldbug candidate in this city.

The Sunday Bystander, the populist organ of this state, is out for Bryan and Sewall without waiting for the action of the populist convention. In this course the Bystander undoubtedly reflects the views of almost every populist in this section. The Bystander says:

"The Bystander is heartily in favor of William J. Bryan for president of the United States. It is true he was nominated by a democratic convention and will run upon a democratic platform. Nevertheless he is as good a populist as there is in the land, and furthermore the platform he stands upon is as good a populist platform as could be asked, except that it leaves out one or two of the planks of the Omaha platform. Bryan's speeches have all been in line with populist thought and have all been in the interest of the common people—nobody can quote a line from him that is contrary to the course of a true patriot. We hold that the first aim of the people's party is to secure the adoption of its principles. It is not party triumph that is wanted so much as the triumph of true principles. That is the view which Nebraska populists have always held with regard to Bryan and it is their votes allied with democratic votes that have twice sent him to congress. They now with but one dissenting voice, in a state convention endorse his nomination for president. We believe there has been but one populist convention out of several held since Bryan was nominated that has failed to endorse him—and that one favored him, but let its delegate go to St. Louis uninstructed. Individually, the populists of Butte are for Bryan with scarcely an exception. They have known Bryan's public record for a long time. They have seen him command the support of the reform leaders without an exception—and they love him for the friends he has made. They have seen him and now see him jumped upon and abused like a pickpocket by the malignant goldbug plutocratic press unanimously—and they doubly love him for these enemies he has made. The St. Louis convention cannot please them better than to endorse, nominate and help to elect him president. In the light of all the enthusiastic expression of populist sentiment at home and abroad favorable to Bryan's endorsement, it is difficult to see how the convention at St. Louis can do otherwise than give to him their prompt, unqualified and enthusiastic support. We believe it will be done and then it will be the duty and privilege of the populists, democrats and republicans of the west, and the laboring men of all parties to show their capabilities at rolling up a majority in his favor, which shall be practically unanimous."

W. W. Cheley, editor and proprietor of the Madisonian, the leading newspaper of Madison county, and one of the most influential republican newspapers in the state, is out for Bryan and Sewall. The last issue of the Madisonian says:

"Never in the political history of the republic has a presidential campaign presented the perplexing problems as does the one just dawning. This applies with special significance to the silver republicans of the west. It is a case of 'to be or not to be,' with them. The republican party has decided for gold and protection; the democracy is advocating silver and free trade. The twin issues are divorced and their advocate, the free silver protectionist, is floundering in the sea of dilemma and perplexity. Unless something unforeseen occurs he must abandon one for the sake of the other. One of the two principles on which the republican party has long fought in Montana, in the past, must be sacrificed. With the silver protectionist it is a choice between two evils. He must either vote for a principle of tariff in which he has not the slightest faith and against which he has always been arraigned or he must cast his ballot to perpetuate a financial system radically against his personal interests and detrimental to the country as a whole. The Madisonian is for silver, horse, foot and dragons."

IN DISTRICT COURT.

Administrator Leyson of the Davis estate, Henry A. Root and the John A. Davis heirs yesterday filed their answers to the contest of Huldah Queen Davis, the California woman who turned up as the last widow of the late A. J. Davis. The answers are a general denial of the alleged marriage in Arkansas in 1842 or at any other time or place and deny that the woman is the widow of the deceased or that her two daughters are Davis children.

George C. Broderick and others, doing business as the Silver Bow Meat company, yesterday brought suit against W. R. Benham and the Union Meat company for $1,825.02, claimed to be due on account. An attachment was issued.

William Burton, the noted claimant in the famous Hesperus lode case, yesterday filed in court a motion for leave to intervene in another branch of the case in which Silas F. King and others

RETURN TO THE TURF

J. B. Haggin, It Is Said, Will Enter Horses Again on the Coast.

HE OWNS SOME OF THE BEST

At Rancho del Paso There are 75 Grandly Bred Yearlings—The "Chronicle" Says Matt Byrnes Will Manage the String.

The racing world will be surprised but delighted to learn that J. B. Haggin, the owner of Rancho del Paso, the biggest breeding farm in the world, is soon to return to the turf, says the San Francisco Chronicle. The Haggin colors of orange and blue, made famous by Salvador and Firenze and other great horses, will be seen at the next meetings of the Pacific Coast and California Jockey clubs.

Haggin is in New York, but recently had several long talks with John Mackay, the superintendent of the breeding farm, who has just returned from the East. Mackay is strongly in favor of racing, and has persuaded Mr. Haggin to again try for some of the richest prizes of the turf. This was probably not a difficult matter, as there is little money in selling yearlings at the present prices. Still there has always been a big demand for Rancho del Paso youngsters, and they have averaged better than any other breeding farm in America.

There are now at Rancho del Paso 75 grandly bred yearlings. These will constitute the nucleus of the 2-year-olds for 1897. They are by such well-known sires as Maxim, Sir Modred, Salvador, Midlothian and other stallions famous for their performances on the turf or the valuable blood which flows in their veins.

Haggin first raced in California with only fair success. That was some 15 years ago. In 1884 the Haggin colors were seen in the East. Hidalgo became the star performer. The stable improved with each succeeding year, but did not become famous until Ben Fox, Ben All and Tyrant created a stir. In 1886 Ben All captured the far-famed Kentucky Derby, while Ben Fox was a frequent stake winner. Then came the peerless Firenze and the great Salvador. These two horses alone made the Haggin stable the most famous in all America. Firenze is very justly regarded as one of the grandest mares that ever looked through a bridle, and was in all probability the most popular mare in the country. Not only was she consistent, but also thoroughly game. Despite the fact that she was anything but a big mare weight seemed to be to her like and also a distance. Goodwin's Turf Guide abounds with the victories of Firenze. She beat the celebrated Hanover among others.

Salvador is known to every one who takes the slightest interest in the "sport of kings." His name stands out prominently in the record table, and as a 4-year-old he was to the American turf what Ormonde was to the English turf. Salvador ran a mile with 110 pounds over the Morris Park straightaway track in 1:35. The one and a quarter mile record for a circular course is held jointly by Salvador and Morello, with a mark of 2:05, but the Haggin colt carried 122 pounds, against 117 packed by Morello. Among other famous horses that have carried the orange and blue to victory might be mentioned Fresno, Aurelia, Yum Yum and Fitzjames.

Rancho del Paso bred horses have won a million dollars on the American turf. Sir Walter and Tournament have won almost a quarter of a million between them. Montana captured $20,000 and Dr. Hasbrouck $15,000. The latter was regarded as the greatest sprinter ever seen in America. Among other big winners that first saw the light of day at Rancho del Paso were: Walizer, $41,000; Sir Excess, $37,000; Sir Matthew, $35,000; Kidder, $32,000; Sir John, $33,000; Edith, $30,000; Connoisseur, $28,000; Gloaming, $25,000; Fitzjames, $25,000; Comanche, $23,000; Ballarat, $22,000; Candelabra, $22,000; and Dorian, $21,000.

J. B. Haggin is better equipped than ever to get together the greatest racing stable in America. Such he undoubtedly had when he gave up racing in the very zenith of his fame to go into breeding exclusively. Up at Rancho del Paso are stallions from all over the world. There is Sir Modred, who has several seasons headed the list of winning sires. Other Australian sires are Dabbin, July and Artillery. England is represented by Gold Finch, a son of Ormonde, the horse of the century; Golden Garter, Midlothian, St. Andrew, Star Ruby, Watercross and others. The most desirable blood in the world is represented in these stallions. The American sires at Rancho del Paso are Salvador, Tenny, Tyrant, Toros, Ben All and others, making in all the grandest collection of stallions owned by one man in the world, not excepting the Duke of Portland. Two hundred and fifty yearlings are raised every year at Rancho del Paso.

It is also reported that Matt Byrnes, the celebrated trainer, who handled Salvador and Firenze when they electrified the turf world by their brilliant victories, is again to assume control of the Haggin stable.

The Drummer From Chicago.

Many stories have been told on the drummer, and especially the Chicago drummer; very few, however, are told at his expense. The stories generally go to show how up-to-date an individual he is. He is looked upon as being a keen, smart, practical fellow—one of those fellows that knows a good thing when he sees it, particularly when it is in line with the business he follows. One of that class, who represents a large grocery establishment in Chicago was in the White Front Grocery the other day and said, addressing the proprietor: "You have a very fine retail establishment here; that is a fine assortment of high-grade goods on the shelves."

"Those goods are recognized everywhere as being the best; the very best."

"You must have a nice class of trade to require those kinds of goods."

"Yes, this store has a fine class of trade and good trade, and the reason for it is, apart from a good supply and reasonable prices, it is known that
